This Season's One Fashion Demand Is

FURS

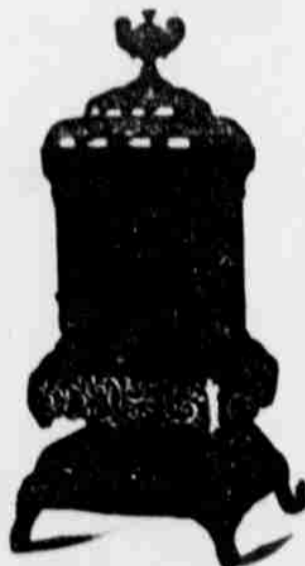

AND FUR TRIMMINGS

To a well dressed woman more than half the value of a fur garment is to know that she purchased it from a reliable furrier, who stands back of the purchase with a guarantee as to the quality of the skins and the thoroughness of the workmanship. Every garment leaving my store will stand the test of the most critical examination.

From the selection of the newest and choicest skins to the last finishing touch given the completed Fur Garments and Small Pieces every feature of this Fur Business receives our personal, experienced attention. Intending Fur purchasers are urged to make their selections now, while our stock affords the widest choice of our own fashionable productions and the newest Paris models.

WOULD FINANCE THE WAR FOR EIGHT DAYS

rent. Now these countries could redeem only 42 per cent of their notes in gold.

Costing $80,000,000 a Day

And the debts—the cost! The first year of the war, not counting the economic waste in works and men, is estimated to have cost more than $20,000,000,000—an average daily cost of nearly $80,000,000. Says the Brooklyn Eagle: "Add to this the economic waste on account of the withdrawal of the vast number of men now under arms from productive occupations, the destruction of property and life, etc., and you will have, according to the best economic minds of this country and Europe, a total daily waste of close to $120,000,000, which is an amount probably altogether beyond the comprehension of the ordinary individual." The Eagle makes some startling comparisons. Europe is spending in 25 1/2 hours what our army costs for a year, and in 45 hours as much as our total expenditures for both army and navy for a year. In a week it is spending as much as the entire stock, capitalization and bonded debt of the Pennsylvania system, the greatest railroad in the world. In six months it is spending the value of all the railroad stocks and bonds in the United States. The dividends paid by the American railroads for the fiscal year 1914 would finance the war for about a week and a half. It is costing in nine days as much as the total national debt of the United States, says the Dubuque Herald.

How Will Europe Settle?

How will Europe's debt problem be settled after the war? There is all probability in the hampering of credit for merchants.

In wholesale reductions of wages. In a rapid rise of prices due to a gold famine.

A threatening discontent, feeling the pinch of credit, lacks in every one of these possibilities.

Even before the war the life of the ordinary man in Europe was no bed of roses, no lap of luxury.

Even before the war there was discontent, warring nations, a long list of threats aimed at those in power.

How, then, to be after the war, when these economic problems, aggravated by a hundredfold return to plague and an "unlucky" how is it to be when commercial and industrial operations that give employment now hampered by lack of credit—when wages are going down, when prices are going up—when the problem of existence, in private and distressing though it was before the war, becomes ten times more intricate and ten times more distressing?

Men who have little to lose and much to hope by revolt will then have still less to lose if not more to hope.

The danger is that the reign of poverty that will almost certainly follow the war will result in a reign of poverty, possibly based on revolution, turmoil, anarchy.

Would Finance It Ten Days

Every day that the war continues the situation grows 100,000,000 worse. The $20,000,000,000 or so that the United States, it appears, will put into the war, would finance it for about ten days and make it just that much worse. The money, it is true, is to be spent for provisions in this country. But it releases an equal amount to be for war in Europe. First of all, the people of the warring countries must be fed at least while the war continues, else there would be a revolution over night. If the United States did not furnish the money for food and necessities the belligerents would have to furnish it themselves. If in no other way, out of their war funds.

The lending of money for such a purpose is no more of a favor than lending a drunkard the money with which to buy whiskey. And there is at least a question whether it is much safer than to lend to a prospective bankrupt additional funds thanks to which he may continue to indulge for a while longer the profligacy that makes bankruptcy imminent.

Dickey Will Open His Bar?

Waiter R. Dickey, who is now an avowed candidate for the Republican nomination for United States senator from Missouri next year, is going to open his barrel and finance the campaign in this state. He is slated to start the campaign off with a contribution of half a million dollars, and more if it is needed to elect him. That alone is sufficient reason why Mr. Dickey should not and will not represent the great state of Missouri in the senate of the United States—Lexington News.

MILAN WOMAN MANAGES TYPE WRITERS

"Can you manage a typewriter?" asked one Milan married lady of another.

"Can I manage a typewriter?" I should say so. I made three leave my husband's office within the last two months, and the last is so homesly that he is almost afraid of her. The management of a typewriter is an art, but I've got it down fine."

THE GALLATIN FASHION

But it was when Witt was placed on the stand that the evidence of thrift was made manifest. Witt testified that he was to receive about $250 for his sleuthing operations, but that in reality he only received about $30. The thrifty members of the organization which hired him, and to whom he was individually indebted, had taken out what he owed them from the money raised to pay him, and had then given him the balance—about $20.

This was corroborated by the mayor of Gallatin, who was one of the crowd who collected what was due them in that way. When he was put on the stand, Attorney Leppard, who represented Witt, not only made him acknowledge that he was one of the league who raised the fund, but that he was also one of the creditors of Witt and that he "took his cut" before the little balance was paid over to the sleuth. He admitted that $250 was raised for Witt, but that after all of the members of the league whom Witt owed had "taken their cut," about all that was left for Witt was that $20.

Pretty thrifty, wasn't it?

GUARANTORS HAD TO DIG

full pledge, and in some cases much more than the full amount of their subscriptions have been given us.

"Mr. Sunday is very anxious that all this expense be gotten out of the way so that he will not have to appeal to the people for money every time he gets into the pulpit. He wishes to give his entire time and mind towards gathering souls, not dollars. As soon as the amount is collected, there will be no more collections at the tabernacle until the last meeting, when a free will offering will be made for Mr. Sunday."

Our budget appears unusually large when compared with that in Des Moines, because of unusual expenses here. Our tabernacle is much larger than that built in Des Moines. Our grading cost us $3,000. We had to pay $1,728 rent for the ground because we are Mr. Sunday this summer instead of last fall, as we expected to do. Then we appropriated $2,000 for extension work among the women. We expect to furnish a good supper to working girls for just 7 cents per meal, thus permitting them to go right from work to the meetings arranged for them. The committee will pay the balance of expenses of the meal. All these things cost money and brought our expenses up.

We are very much encouraged over the promptness with which our requests for money were met this morning by the guarantors. In handing us his check for $500, Mr. Watters said he felt there were at least ten other men of means in Omaha who should pay as much and that he felt sure they would do so when called upon."

As soon as the larger guarantors have been called upon for their one-half contributions, those who pledged smaller amounts will be notified. It is hoped to get the entire debt out of the way by the end of this week.

"We want every person who attends the sermon Thursday night to contribute $1 or more, whether they are under pledge or not, and in addition to the pledge. Thursday night is 'dollar night.'"

"This is not, in a sense, a call for the pledges, nor for one-half of those pledges," says Billy Sunday. "The committee is simply calling upon those who have pledged themselves for a certain amount and are asking them if they will, of their own free will, pay one-half of those pledges now. The action should not be construed as a call upon the guarantors."

"In several other cities we have found it necessary to make similar calls."

WOULD THE MOTHER OBLIGE?

Little Edna one day turned to her mother, who was a widow, and said: "Mamma, do you really and truly love me?" "Why, of course, my dear. Why do you ask?" "And will you prove it to me?" "Yes, if I can." "Then go marry the man around the corner who keeps the candy store."

The Hart-Parr

"Little Devil" Oil Tractor

Has Some Distinctive Features That Will Interest You

No Moving Parts on Motor—No cams, cam gears or push rods. No valves, valve levers or flippers of any kind—no valve timing. Just two, smooth, substantial cylinders with some holes in them of the proper size and in the proper places—not one thing about them to adjust or to get out of adjustment. Nothing but the two pistons and their connections that even move—consequently nothing else to wear. You know what causes the trouble with motors—the cams pound the pushers—the joints get loose—the springs get weak—the valves hammer the valve seats—and pretty soon everything starts to wear—gets loose, clatters and bangs. The valves get out of tune—your engine loses power—you have to stop and adjust it or something breaks and you are laid up for repairs. The "LITTLE DEVIL" motor has none of these clap-traps about it—just some holes in the cylinders instead. It can't get out of adjustment. There is nothing to get loose—nothing to break. The holes stay right where they are put—you go right along, day after day, with nothing to bother you, and you get just as much power from the "LITTLE DEVIL" at the end of the season's run as when you started. The motor is covered with a neat, substantial hood, just like an auto. All other vital, moving parts are thoroughly well protected from dust, dirt and grit.
